ROSEDALE

Friends of the bereaved family extend deepest sympathy to them in their sorrow.

There were about fifty cars in the procession which then made its way twelve miles north to the new Roseedale cemetery where the Masons took over the service and paid fitting tribute to a departed brother. This was the first interment to take place in the new cemetery.

Mr. Redmond leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, three sons; John, Frank and James, all of Edmonton; three daughters; Mrs. J. Earl Graham, of Fort Saskatchewan; Mrs. A. L. Peppard, of Berkeley, California; and Miss Alice Redmond, of Edmonton. Five brothers, Frank and Samuel, of Edmonton; Hugh, of Paradise Valley, Alberta; Earnest of Dean, Halifax County, N. S., and Charles, of Dawson City, Yukon; and three sisters, Mrs. Margaret Cooper, of Staten Island, N. Y.; Miss Nellie Redmond, of Mass.; and Miss J. A. Redmond, of Vancouver, B. C.

Of the six children all were able to attend the funeral with the exception of Mrs. Peppard, of Berkeley, California. The floral tributes were indeed beautiful, including a pillow from the family; spray from Frank, Elma and family; a spray from Sam and Muriel; wreath from Hugh, Jennie and family and Vernon; spray from Nettie Redmond; spray from Earnest and Cora; wreath from Mr. and Mrs. Jack Graham; Meta, Elsie and Irene; a wreath from Mr. and Mrs. W. Mr. Redmond was born in Dean, Halifax County, Nova Scotia in 1908 and came to this district in 1908, since when he has been a highly respected and valued member of this community.

The body was shipped to Edmonton on Wednesday, July 26th, from the Howard and McBride funeral parlours in Edmonton and Mr. McLeod took charge of affairs at this end. Rev. Bainbridge very ably conducted the funeral service in the United Church in Edmonton. The hymns sung were "Abide With Me" and "Sun of My Soul." Nature's Laws

In these days much is said and written on the subject of planning—farm planning, industrial planning, social planning, financial planning. Economists, both those who have made a life study of economic principles, trends and problems, and those who assume to speak on economics but have only a superficial knowledge of the subject, are talking and writing on the subject of planning. Governments the world over are engaged with the subject, and world conferences are wrestling with it. As a result, people are confused with the multiplicity of ideas advanced, and in the majority of cases, one set of ideas is contradicted by another set.

However, out of the confusion, there has come the suggestion that nations everywhere should reverse the process they have been following of increasing and expanding production and proceed to curtail production. So we are told, farmers should reduce the acreage they are planting to wheat and cotton and coffee; miners should mine less copper, iron, silver, zinc and tin; smaller quantities of oil should be pumped from the bowels of the earth; fewer fish should be caught; less timber cut; smaller quantities of manufactured articles turned out.

The suggestion is an absurd one. The population of the world is steadily, even rapidly, increasing, and people want more of everything, not less. Why then produce less to meet their needs? The problem that calls for solution is not that there is too much wheat in the world, or that too much of it is being produced annually, but that certain countries for purely national reasons are denying to their people the right to import wheat and in so doing are denying to them the privilege of cheap bread. And what applies to wheat, applies in varying degrees to all other products and commodities.

Nature with her immutable and inexorable laws has a way of controlling production. In this year of 1933 when the story of huge wheat surpluses is heard on every hand, Nature stepped in and reduced the wheat crop of the United States by two hundred million bushels, and struck tens of millions of bushels off the Canadian crop; and reduced the yield in other countries. Drought, and hail, and grasshoppers, and other insect pests all took their toll, and as a result the world will not produce more wheat than its inhabitants require.

Suppose the acreage sown to wheat, for example, was arbitrarily curtailed by order of governments. Farmers would be obliged to summerfallow the land not needed to prevent it becoming infested with weeds. It will be acknowledged that the more carefully and intensively the land is worked and cultivated, the greater the production per acre. Consequently, the almost certain result would be that larger average yields would be obtained, and the reduced acreage in crop would be offset to a considerable extent by the heavier yields. Therefore, even assuming that less wheat should be produced, reduction in acreage sown might not solve the problem. It may be admitted that there would be an economic saving to the farmer in increasing his yield per acre and sowing fewer acres. Possibly farmers should have followed this practice in the past, and should do so in the future, but not with the object of raising less wheat, but better wheat and more of it per acre at less cost to himself.

And if man decided in his wisdom, or lack of it, to greatly reduce the production of wheat in any one year, Nature might likewise in that year enforce certain of her laws to bring about a reduction, with the result that man might easily find himself in dire need. Or Nature might offset the puny efforts of man and order climatic and other conditions which would more than offset all man's efforts to lessen production.

Man stands impotent when drought comes and dry follows day without rain; he is powerless when hail lashes his grain crops to the ground; he can wage but a futile battle when grasshoppers and other pests swarm over the land; he can do nothing if a blighting frost destroys. But Nature has her own ways and methods of control. When grasshoppers increase, a parasite develops which ultimately destroys the hoppers; when rabbits become unduly numerous, disease takes them off. Man may wage war against this or that, but he may plan and seek to control, but in the final analysis Nature directs and controls.

There are men who in this day and generation propose to plan and control practically everything, who declare that old laws of supply and demand, of the survival of the fittest, are obsolete, and should be ignored, or overcome. These things, they say, are merely the laws of the jungle, which should have no place in our modern civilization. But the laws of the jungle are Nature's laws. In the jungle Nature rules supreme, and it is a jungle because no attempt is made to interfere with Nature.

Man may, and can, and does control some of the powers of Nature. Working with Nature he can bring about many improvements, and may even control Nature in some of its aspects and workings. But with many of Nature's laws and workings, man can exercise no control whatever. He cannot lengthen or shorten the seasons, he cannot determine the weather, he cannot order the earth to bring forth bountiful crops this year and less than normal crops next year. And he better not try to do it.

The real trouble with the world today is that man has tried to control Nature's law of supply and demand by setting up an intricate network of man-made restrictions, obstructions, barriers, prohibitions, which interfere with the natural working of that law. As a result man has put himself into a huge spider's web of his own making in which he is struggling in futile fashion. He can only free himself, not by a further defiance of and interference with Nature, but by destroying the web he has woven to his own undoing.

Aquarium That Is Different

Queer Fish Kept In Refrigeration Rooms At Port Of Seattle

In a frozen aquarium, believed by officials to be the only one of its kind, strange fish from many waters stare stonily at thousands of visitors at Seattle every year. The aquarium was not planned, it just grew. Harry E. Larson, of the port of Seattle, explains, until it is becoming world famous. One day a fisherman brought in a strange fish and wanted to hang it up in the refrigeration rooms. There another caught a different variety, rare in these waters. So it grew until there is now a collection which has attracted as many as 1,500 visitors to the plant in a single day. They have a temperature of ten degrees below freezing to walk through the corridor lined with ice-encased rarities of the deep.

Traditions Being Shattered

Rugby School Will Prepare Boys For World Of Industry

One of the most famous public schools is breaking away from its ancient academic traditions to give some of its pupils a "finishing course" which will prepare them for the conditions they will find in industry and business.

P. H. B. Lyon, the Rugby head, made this disclosure at Speech Day celebrations.

"For the first time," he said, "we are to make a serious attempt to cater for those boys who are not going on to the universities."

"We are going to bridge, in their last year, the gap between the school and the world of industry or commerce."

"Changes will be made in the curriculum next year for this purpose."

Would Eliminate Slums

Slums may disappear like magic some day, according to Sir Ernest Simon, former lord mayor of Manchester, at a conference of the Association of Technical Institutions in Manchester. He said a Liverpool chemist, who was an idealist and probably was looking forward a generation or so, had told him that chemists were able to produce a synthetic material to build houses so cheaply and of such beautiful design that slums would automatically disappear.

Professor Raps Modern

Method Of Education

Says Students' Mind Clogged With Dead Matter

Modern methods of education clog the mind and as the result modern young people are class, conscious, really ignorant, selfish and arrogant, their minds filled with dead matter.

This slashing attack on modern methods of education was made by Dr. William Oliver, professor of the School of Organization and Industry at Edinburgh University, Scotland, in an address at the annual conference of the textile industry held in Harrogate, England.

"Modern education tends," Dr. Oliver said, "to hinder mental development by clogging the mind with dead matter. Education has become too pedantic, and in consequence distrust has arisen between men interested in education and men interested in industry."

"The idea that education should relieve its recipients of manual labor work is distinctly unfortunate that much of the present day educational procedure is developing a class of young people who do not wish to work in factories, or indeed to work at all. Many 'liberally educated' young people are really ignorant, selfish and arrogant."

"Wherever a man gets above the dead level of bare subsistence he becomes obsessed with the idea that his family should have an easier time than he has had. He fails to see that his hard work has been the essential factor in any success he has achieved."

Producing Pulp In Canada

Cord Of Wood Yields A Ton Of Pulp

It is usually considered that a cord of wood will yield a ton of groundwood, or 2,243.130 tons of chemical pulp. This is borne out by the figures of manufacture of wood-pulp for the year 1930, compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in co-operation with the Forest Service, Department of the Interior. These show that in making the 2,037,130 tons of groundwood pulp produced in that year 2,241,296 cords of pulpwood were used and that 2,168,886 cords of wood were required to make 1,076,804 tons of chemical fibre. The average production of pulp per cord of wood used was 1,076,804 tons of chemical fibre.

Looking For Sandy Beaches

Stefansson Scourged Arctic Mountains Are Going To Search Arctic

Seeking sandy beaches under icebergs will be part of the R.C.M.P.'s arctic patrol work the next two years, for as the "Nasopie" sailed recently bearing aboard "Mounties" to be stationed in the polar regions of Canada for the next two years, they had instructions to look for sandy beaches. The night before the "Nasopie" sailed Vilhjalmur Stefansson, famous explorer, wired Gen. T. H. MacBrien, commissioner of the R.C.M.P., asking him to enlist the co-operation of the red-coats, in searching for sandy beaches under the ice. The wire stated that Stefansson had never recalled having seen one, and he wanted to confirm his own experiences.

Constitutes a Record

Change Hardly Noticeable

American Inch Unit Now Two-Millionths Longer Than In Length

The American inch unit of measurement has lost two-millionths of its former length in order that precise measuring in the United States and England may be done on the same basis. The new definition of the inch is now 25.4 millimetres—a difference of about one-eighth of an inch in a mile as compared with the former American standard. This minute alteration was made necessary by modern precision manufacturing and the confusion arising from varying standards in the two countries. Gauge blocks now made correct to within one-millionths of an inch. Both the United States bureau of standards and the national physical laboratory of England will certify industrial gauges on the new basis.

Test Was Satisfactory

First test of the Dynamax car, three-wheeled automobile built on the stream-line principle of fast boats, was held at Bridgeport, Connecticut, before 3,000 spectators. With its inventor and designer, Buckminster Fuller at the wheel, the automobile attained a speed of 70 miles an hour over the one-third mile cement test road at Seaside Park.

"Will I let you?" he replied. "Dear-est, I'm depending on it!"

NEW EMPIRE TRADE CRUSADE IS SUGGESTED

London, Eng.—Proposal to send a group of distinguished Canadians, former members of the Canadian expeditionary force, under leadership of General Sir Arthur Currie to Montreal on a new empire trade crusade to the United Kingdom was put forward by Walter John S. Roper, president of the Canadian Legion.

This "crusade" to boost trade between Canada and the mother country was outlined by Major Roper in an address to the convention of the British Empire Service League during discussion of empire trade.

"Our appeal to the British people," declared Major Roper, "will be made directly on behalf of Canada's unemployed soldiers. At the appropriate time we propose to bring over to this country, with the co-operation and assistance of the British Empire Service League and of the British Legion, a group of our most distinguished soldier-citizens, statesmen, professional men, business men—group which will represent the very highest qualities in our national life.

"We propose to hold a series of meetings all over Great Britain when addresses will be made to the British people generally and to the trading and financial interests in particular.

General Sir Arthur Currie commander of the Canadian corps during the war, now principal of McGill University, would lead the Canadian group, Major Roper revealed. The proposal had been made, he added, by the Prince of Wales and approved by Dominions Secretary J. H. Thomas, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner in London, and the empire council of the British Empire Service League.

"We propose at such a time to vividly recall the memories of 1914 to 1918," he went on. "We shall suggest that the magnificent spirit of loyalty and of service and sacrifice for king and country and empire ought not to be forgotten."

The object of the "friendly invasion" would be to impress on the people of Great Britain the virtues of purchasing from Canadian sources those goods they need from abroad and which Canada can supply, said Major Roper.

Under Sir Arthur Currie's leadership the trade mission would appeal to the people in the name of those thousands of Canadian dead in France and Belgium and of other thousands mutilated in the Great War to rally to a new empire crusade declared Major Roper.

"The point we shall endeavor to drive home," he said, "is the fact that insofar as many of our men are concerned the war is not over yet, and that they are suffering even now from the terrible curse of unemployment in the land which they so faithfully served and without a shadow of doubt saved."

"What these men require and what they have a right to is to have work so that by their own industry they may carry on as they did before the war."

"That the duty is not ours alone. It lies fairly and squarely on the shoulders of every citizen of our great empire."

Kidnapper Convicted

Death Penalty For Man Who Abducted Kansas Girl

Kansas City.—Walter McGee, confessed leader of the gang that kidnapped Miss Mary McElroy, daughter of City Manager H. E. McElroy, and collected $30,000 ransom, was assessed the death penalty by a criminal court jury.

Formal sentence will be passed later by Judge Allan C. Souther. The case was the first in which the extreme penalty has been assessed in the United States crusade against kidnapers.

It is one of the few in history to bring the death sentence where the victim of the kidnapping was unharmed.

The jury deliberated 3 1/2 hours.

Would Ship Butter To New Zealand

Vernon, B.C.—The Okanagan Valley Co-Operative Creamery would reverse the order of things and ship butter to New Zealand, taking in return lumber or fish. Directors of the company have petitioned the Minister of Trade and Commerce requesting him to try to arrange a shipment of Canadian butter to the antipodean dominion.

High Commissioner

London Representative Has Not Standing Of Cabinet Minister
Ottawa, Ont.—Queries reaching Ottawa from British newspapers indicate that the question of the Canadian High Commissioner being a member of the Dominion Government is again under discussion in London. Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, High Commissioner in London, is a member of the Canadian Privy Council as was his predecessor, Hon. Peter Larkin. As such he may, alone, a cabinet meeting but evidently in some quarters the proposal being made that Canada's representative to the British Government should be a full fledged cabinet minister.

During the war Sir George Perley before he became high commissioner, represented Canada in London while a member of the Borden Government.

The argument has been advanced that a high commissioner could more effectively serve Canada if he had the authority of a member of the Dominion Government. Under the present arrangement, the high commissioner is responsible to the minister of external affairs, whereas if he were a cabinet minister he would be responsible to cabinet as are the holders of the other portfolios.

One suggestion made some time ago was that a member of the cabinet serve in London for two years and then be succeeded by another member, thereby always having a representative in close touch with Dominion affairs.

End Economic War

Expect Trade Barriers Between England and Ireland Will Be Removed

Dublin, Irish Free State.—The belief is growing that the economic war between the United Kingdom and the Irish Free State, which rested on withholding by the Free State Government of land annuities amounting to $15,000,000 a year, will be speedily ended.

"We are not anxious to maintain tariff barriers," Sean Lemass, Minister of Industry and Commerce, declared in the senate. "We will remove the emergency duties now if Great Britain undertakes to remove her penal duties within a reasonably short time."

Mr. Lemass added that if certain members of the United Kingdom government would "show a little sanity" there would be a speedy end to the dispute.

The minister's speech is generally regarded as a distinct advance and gesture to the United Kingdom.

Crowned Wheat King

Freland Willford Of Stately, Successful Farmer

Calgary, Alberta.—Freland Willford, crowned wheat king at Regina World's Grain Show, also is a prominent stockman of the Stately, Alberta district. Freland carries a fine herd of Tamworth hogs, a flock of Hampshire sheep, a herd of Hereford cattle and a number of purebred horses on his four sections of land.

In every sense of the word a successful mixed farmer, Willford will receive a rousing welcome when he returns to Stately with the wheat crown. Stately residents, while preparing for a great reception, told Willford and his wife had quietly prepared since the fall of 1932 for the Regina show.

In the daytime and under artificial light at night the couple examined bushel after bushel of Reward wheat until he found the sample that carried him to victory at the world's greatest grain exhibition.

Viewed As Experiment

Believe Roosevelt Plan Would Not Be Success In Canada

Toronto, Ont.—Toronto business leaders said they did not believe an industrial recovery plan along lines of that initiated in the United States by President Roosevelt would succeed in Canada. The United States plan of raising pay and shortening working hours, they said, could not be regarded otherwise than as an experiment.

C. H. Carlisle, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, said "I am not in favor of President Roosevelt's plan as a plan that would work out permanently. If it works at all, it is a sort of anaesthetic for a bad case."

C. L. Burton, president of the Robert Simpson Company, described the scheme as "dynamite." In his opinion, Mr. Burton said, "the less interference by the government with business the better for the wage-earner."

J. Allen Ross, president of the Williams-Wrigley Company, differed. He said he thought the Roosevelt plan had a good chance of success, but admitted "the industrial set-up of this country is different."

Herman Trelle Captures Prize

Takes First Place With Sample Of Reward Wheat

Regina, Sask.—Herman Trelle, champion wheat grower of Wembley, with his sample of Reward wheat took first place and a prize of $1,500 in the class of 10 bushels of hard spring wheat at the World's Grain Show. Alberta growers occupied the first six places in this class, and a total of 12 prizes out of 25 offered. Prize money going to Alberta in the 10-bushel hard red wheat class totaled $5,275, out of $6,000.

PART PLAYED BY EMPIRE IN WORLD PARLEY

London, Eng.—"The British Commonwealth of Nations was one of the greatest powers participating in the World Economic Conference," the Prince of Wales declared in addressing delegates to the sixth biennial conference of the British Empire Service League at a banquet here.

"Because of our position we can never have any narrow, national character," he continued. "For one of the greatest powers of the world to have no narrow, individualistic national character but yet be held by a great bond is a very great thing at present."

The Prince said that after ten years the British Empire Service League had justified its existence among ex-servicemen and among governments in all parts of the commonwealth. All parts of the Empire had suffered severely during the last ten years. War veterans of the Empire had borne their burdens with great fortitude, he said, because they knew what service and sacrifice were and knew it was up to them to help others who had not been through the same grueling.

The heir to the throne read a telegram from the King wishing continued prosperity to the league.

"Danger clouds are showing in more than one quarter," declared Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill responding to a toast to the guests. "The glorious victory has not been followed by any slackening in the demands for exertion or any increase in the ease of the lives of our people, but we ease of the lives of our people, but we can feel a certain satisfaction at the position we hold today."

Improving Bay Railway

Work Being Done Between Mile 442

Churchill, Man.—Extensive improvements in the Hudson Bay Railway line are being made in this division in order to facilitate grain movements and industry in the far north.

A work train employing 80 men is located in the yards here. Seventy men are employed at the gravel pit five miles east of the harbor. Five train crews are operating between the pit and Mile 442, Hudson Bay Railway. The embankments on the right-of-way are being widened between that point and Churchill. Ballasting is also being carried out along the line. About 130 ballast cars are being used on this job.

An extension of trackage to facilitate movement of grain at the terminal elevator is being laid 1,600 feet beyond last year's limits.

One work train is making one trip per day to the muskeg camp at Mile 486 where moss is being delivered for the covering of the pipe line which leads from the reservoir east of the port to the townsite.

Unemployed Congress

National Meeting Of Workless To Be Held In Ottawa

Ottawa, Ont.—The city council has been asked to provide accommodation for some hundreds of delegates who plan to hold a national congress of the unemployed in Ottawa, Sept. 6 and 7. The secretary of the national committee of unemployed councils, H. Sula, Toronto, also asked that the city provide food for the delegates.

Last August a similar gathering of the unemployed was held here, with hundreds of unemployed men and women coming to the capital by hitch-hiking, riding freight trains, and on foot. Some ride freight trains all the way from the Pacific coast.

The forthcoming congress was called by a committee appointed at the gathering last August.

Flight Postponed

McIlloin's Plans For Further Flight Of From The Front

New York.—Captain James McIlloin said the projected flight of himself and his wife, Amy Johnson, is definitely off for the time being.

"I'm not through flying," the Scotsman said as he lay in bed in his hotel recovering from injuries suffered when his plane crashed at Bridgeport, Conn., after a trans-Atlantic hop.

Although he made it plain that their flying plans for the immediate future have not been made, McIlloin intimated he had in mind obtaining on his return to England, a plane similar to the "Seafarer," the plane in which the couple crashed.

Meanwhile it became known that the "Seafarer" is being prepared for shipment to England on the liner "American Farmer."

Road To Recovery

Industrial Situation Is Showing Further Improvement

Ottawa, Ont.—Canada's industrial situation showed further marked improvement at the beginning of July. Increases in personnel reported to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics by 8,125 firms were greater than those indicated by the firms making returns for any previous July in any year since 1920.

Establishments reporting data had 776,148 persons on their staff on July 1, as compared with 742,750 on June 1. This increase caused the Bureau's index to rise by 3.8 points to 84.5 as compared with the average seasonal advance of about two points.

Visitor To Canada

British Free Trade Group Coming To Conference At Banff

London, Eng.—Sir Herbert Samuel, leader of the Free Trade group in the House of Commons and former Home Secretary, will lead the British delegation to the conference on Pacific relations to be held at Banff, Alberta, this month. It was announced, Sir Herbert left for Canada July 28.

He will also attend a meeting of the Royal Institute of International Affairs to be held in Toronto, September 12. At this gathering it is planned to discuss some outstanding empire questions.

U. S. RECOVERY PROGRAM WINS WIDE APPROVAL

London, Eng.—Approval for President Roosevelt's recovery program was voiced in the House of Commons by spokesmen of the three principal political camps.

The debate, which turned upon the eve of indefinite adjournment of that gathering, drew from Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, the declaration that the pound sterling is an independent currency, linked neither to gold nor the U.S. dollar.

Independent speakers of the Laborite, Liberal and Conservative groups declared the United States is not to blame for lack of accomplishments by the economic parity.

"There was no basis on which President Roosevelt could stabilize the dollar with reference to the pound," charged the veteran Liberal chief, David Lloyd George, making one of his now rare appearances in the parliamentary discussions.

Asserting the economic conference is dead, Mr. Lloyd George asserted that "the prime minister is engaged in finding the best method of embarking it, so as to keep the appearance of life after the spirit has departed."

Cheers greeted the statement from the Conservative member, Wardlaw Milne, it was impossible for the United States to enter an agreement to stabilize the U.S. dollar.

Many speakers referred to "the great experiment" now in progress in the United States. Mr. Lloyd George said:

"There are three experiments now proceeding, on the success or failure of which the whole outlook of the world depends—the Russian, the Italian and the American. The American is the most important."

"I hate to use the word revolution in referring to it (the American), but it is a complete transformation." The debate was forced on the government in order to clear up its policies with regard to such problems as currency and public works.

WOULD LOWER INTER-EMPIRE TRADE BARRIERS

London, Eng.—Re-affirmation of the agreements reached at the imperial economic conference held last year at Ottawa and the need for the ultimate restoration of an international gold standard are set forth in an important declaration signed by empire delegates to the World Economic Conference at a meeting held after the conclusion of the international gathering.

The declaration points to the necessity of higher wholesale prices and recognizes the importance of stability of inter-empire exchange rates in the interests of empire trade.

The announcement marks the conclusion of weeks of negotiation conducted in the strictest secrecy, sometimes in private houses and sometimes in cabinet offices in Whitehall—and is signed by representatives of the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and India. No signature was appended on behalf of the Irish Free State whose representative referred the matter to his government.

The delegates declared they were satisfied the Ottawa agreements had already had beneficial effects on inter-imperial trade and the benefits were likely to continue. They re-affirmed the necessity for lowering inter-imperial barriers to facilitate empire and world trade.

The declaration states again the principles of the Ottawa agreements concerning the raising of wholesale prices and notes this policy has attained an encouraging measure of success. In this connection it is pointed out that since June 1932 the price of beef in the United Kingdom has risen 12 per cent. while the rise in British prices of primary products for the same period has been about 20 per cent.

The delegations consider, therefore, that it is important the commonwealth should pursue, within the limits of sound finance, a price-raising policy until evidence of equilibrium is re-established and when the position could be stabilized. They also consider the expansion of a government's program of capital outlay as a matter for the respective governments in the light of their own circumstances.

The Ottawa policy for the ultimate restoration of the gold standard under which international co-operation would be secured with a view to avoiding as far as practicable undue fluctuations in the purchasing power of gold is also re-affirmed in the declaration.

Ruling In Marriage Case

Alberta Court Determines Provincial Laws Governing Youthful Contracts

Calgary, Alberta.—Alberta court of appeal has ruled any girl over 12 and any boy over 14 years of age may marry without their parents' consent as far as provincial laws are concerned, declaring such cases are exclusively under Dominion government control.

The judgment was handed down in Edmonton, Tuesday, during appeal court sittings and followed hearing of a case in which a mother attempting to have the marriage of her daughter annulled on the grounds both the daughter and youthful husband failed to obtain their parents' consent. The girl was 19 years of age and the boy 20.

The court held the marriage was valid in handing down judgment. A minority dissenting judgment was handed down by Mr. Justice Clarke.

Western Wheat Crop

Heat and Drought Spoils Excellent Prospects In June

Ottawa, Ont.—Continued uncertainty as to the prospects for crops on the prairie is noted in the ninth of a series of 15 weekly telegraphic reports on conditions in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Excellent wheat prospects in May were generally bright in June by drought, and July brought a further decline, the report states.

The unsatisfactory conditions are regional, however, the report explains, and the effect on the whole wheat crop will depend upon the acreage affected.

Edge Is Off Relief

Toronto, Ont.—"The edge is off the relief problem. A large percentage of Ontario's unemployed have been absorbed," said Hon. J. D. McInnis, Ontario minister of public works, in a statement here.

WAINWRIGHT ——— ALBERTA

MEMBER THE CANADIAN WEEKLY NEWSPAPER ASSOCIATION

It has been a little over a year since I landed in Wainwright to take over the publishing of The Wainwright Star. Since that time there has been many changes in Wainwright both in business and personal. Some have moved away and many new men have come in to take charge of various business interests. There has not been anyone that has starved to death in this immediate community that we have heard of. A year ago many people wondered how the country would hold together but nothing much has happened and many of us are here yet, ready to face another year with all the courage we can muster up, not ready to quit as long as there is the faintest hope of life.

So far as I am concerned I am here through force of circumstances. I could not have gotten out unless I walked. Just why I am still here is as much of a mystery to me as to the others, perhaps. However, I have learned to be more or less content wherever I may happen to be. It seems that the good Lord certainly has a reason for holding me here and I am ready to do all the good I can to all the people I come in contact with. There are perhaps three main reasons why I am in the newspaper business here in Wainwright. One is, because I can not find anything else to do. Another reason is because I was urged to start another paper with promised assistance financially, morally and spiritually. Another reason is because I believe a wide newspaper can be of great assistance in boosting the best interests of a community. It is a medium of exchange by which news and business interests can be exchanged for the welfare of all concerned. In my relation to both papers in this community, I have always had splendid support and I feel that as time goes on we will gradually assume more of the responsibilities of the best interests of the community and thus prove to the general public our sincere devotion to all that is contributing to the business, educational or religious interests of the entire community.

Our office will be in the old Bisson building where J. W. Daugherty is located. For an issue or two the paper will be published out of town until we get our equipment installed. We shall be pleased to take care of all your business, either in publishing news of interest or in carrying your advertising or doing your job work. We will appreciate having you call in and chatting with us.

THE TIME TO "PEG"

The price of wheat has been "pegged" in the United States, minimum figures being set below which it may not be offered for sale in the grain exchanges.

That somewhat changes the situation with respect to "pegging" in Canada. A year ago parliament was strongly urged to set a minimum price, considerably higher than the then prevailing market price. That was refused, on the ground that the risk to the national treasury would be too great. The taxpayers would stand to lose the spread between the market price and the fixed price.

Conditions have radically changed in the meantime. The market price is now higher than the figure which the Government was asked to set as a minimum a year ago. The whole force of international sentiment is for higher not lower prices. That is recognized to be a necessity to world recovery.

Pegging now at about the present market price, would involve little apparent risk to the taxpayers, and would give the market a stability which it showed last week to be badly needed. The proposal to peg in an attempt to hold a gain that has actually been made is something quite different.

The United States has taken that means to check panics and prevent prices plunging. Canada might well follow the lead, and thus assure the farmer that the market will not go to pieces when he starts to sell the new crop.

THE NATIONS NEED ONE ANOTHER

There are several indications that the nations of the world are beginning to see the folly of exclusive tariffs. The disease has spread so widely that it cannot be cured rapidly, but at least economic nationalism is now recognized as a disease. It is seen as a game at which one nation may for a time play to advantage, but when all the nations do it, prohibitory tariffs are soon reduced to a practical absurdity. Too high tariffs kill business, and incidentally lower national revenues. When the foreigners' goods are shut out, the nations own goods are shut in. Infant industries never seem to grow up. Class interests with influence over governments take away from free-born citizens the right to buy and sell. Shipping and railways go idle when the exchange of goods is unduly hampered. A decline of billions in world trade has led tariff makers to rethink their theories. They have bumped against hard economic facts.

Economists of the first rank are saying that tariffs have been overdue. Premier Ramsey MacDonald made a trip across the Atlantic to discuss with President Roosevelt what might be done to undo this tariff nonsense. Premier Bennett went to Washington also to feel out the possibilities of some measure of reciprocity between Canada and the United States. Over fifty nations have agreed to come together to discuss the lowering of tariffs. Very speedy action need not be expected, but it is hopeful to have such general recognition that tariffs have made so-called protection ludicrous.

At root this is a moral and religious problem. Nations cannot live by hate and selfishness any more successfully than individuals. Trade need not be war: it may be mutually advantageous to both buyer and seller. Nations can only pay their debts with goods. Exclusiveness is just a perpetuation of Pharisaism with a new name and a less worthy motive. When nationalism becomes a veritable religion, it is a setting-up of polytheism in another guise. If we believe that God is our Father, that all men should be brotherly, and that Christ's ideal of the kingdom of God transcends national and social distinctions, we will be more likely to vote on tariff questions from an international rather than a national point of view. It has been said that in the end we do the right thing because we first try all the wrong methods and find that they will not work.

In many ways the products of the nations are complementary. It is no crime to buy and sell outside the boundaries of one's own land. International trade should be stimulated, not discouraged. Christians cannot much longer sing of universal good will on Sunday and treat foreigners as commercial foes during the week. The Sunday School, by developing world friendliness, may incidentally reduce unemployment and poverty. We must educate for internationalism. Confederation in Canada and the federal union of the United States have demonstrated the advantages of free trade within a nation. It would be folly to have tariff walls between Nova Scotia and British Columbia, Massachusetts and California. Some day in the not distant future trade-destroying tariffs between nations will also be regarded as unenlightened selfishness. To seek prosperity by restraint of trade is a self-defeating policy.

Raise In Wage
is Industry
Promise

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Thousands of employers informed President Roosevelt of the United States Tuesday, that they were raising the pay and shortening the hours of their work.

From villages and crowded metropolitan centres came a steady flow of yellow and blue messages pledging whole-hearted co-operation to his appeal last night to industry to maintain or increase present day levels and shorten working hours to put more persons to work.

Both President Roosevelt and Hugh S. Johnson, the key man of the recovery programme, expressed their satisfaction with the response and forecast a further spontaneous return when the wage and work regulation agreements go out Thursday to 5,000,000 business men for their signature.

While this emergency phase of the industrial work was strongly to the fore and will be for days, the recovery administration itself was moving ahead with the more lasting codes. The oil, lumber, wool and rayon weaving industries had their codes before deputy administrators for hearing.

The code for shipbuilders, a centre of controversy between Johnson and the navy department over the maximum hour provisions, was sent to the White house and others were likely to reach President Roosevelt this week.

LONDON PRESS HAS
PRAISE FOR PRESIDENT.

LONDON, July 26th.—President Roosevelt's speech on recovery to the American nation Monday night stirred widespread interest here and was much discussed in political and private circles and in the press. The attitude of London papers was one of approval for the President's action and of hearty Godspeed for its success, with nevertheless a doubt interpolated here and there.

The Times said: "Much more is at stake than the immediate well being of the American people in a world of nations which must live, if they are to live prosperously, by the law of interdependence. Failure of the American experiment would amount to a universal disaster. Its progress should be watched with deep and friendly interest and its success should be devoutly desired everywhere."

The Herald declares: "President Roosevelt is working on a sound basis that the crisis is due not to underproduction but to overproduction and that the right remedy is to increase consumption and raise the general standard of living. He insists the result can be achieved by democratic self discipline. We believe he is right."

The Preacher in His PulpitThe Challenge of The DifficultThe Rev. Paul B. Shedd, Rockwell City, Iowa.

"And it came to pass when the days were well nigh come that he should be received up, he steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem." Luke 9:51.

The text is taken from the story of the life of our Lord at the time when he is about to make his last journey to Jerusalem. He realized that going to Jerusalem was no easy task. It was necessary, as the commentators translate this verse, that he "set his face like a flint" to go to Jerusalem. There was much temptation of heart and winding of spirit. It was the beginning of the end, and although he welcomed the Hosannas and the songs of the pilgrims as he neared the sacred city still his heart was not filled with song and joy as were the hearts of those who accompanied him. He stopped before the city and wept over it. It was indomitable steadfastness and unconquerable will which set like a flint.

To everyone who has accomplished something, life has been like that. Part of the success has been opportunity and talent but the major factor contributing to every success has been the setting the face steadfastly toward the work in hand. Augustus, Saint Gaudens was a shoemaker by trade, but he was an artist. He apprenticed himself to the first cameo cutter in America. Not being satisfied with that he went to the Cooper Institute at night, working there until eleven o'clock, becoming so tired that he almost had to be carried to work in the morning. A trip to Europe was made possible and he worked and studied there undergoing the greatest hardship. Finally, after twenty-nine years of hardship and poverty, he was given a commission for the statues of Admiral Farragut and Robert Taylor. Today everyone is proud of the work of Augustus Saint Gaudens. Picture Lincoln as he set out for Washington after his first election requesting that his friends in Springfield look after his blessing on his mission. One cannot help but note the severe strain under which he was speaking as he set his face like a flint to take up the task which had been placed upon him.

Incident after incident of this spirit could be multiplied. It is the stuff which makes men great. The plea here is not for patience to withstand temporary hardship or even disaster. We can rally for a time but can we stand the stress and strain of everyday life and in spite of all that must be overcome still accomplish something? There are too many who are like Charles the Second of England. He was a wit and a skeptic and his life had been one long lesson in human incredulity, "an easy going monarch and a manoeuvring king." As his courtiers stood around his bed at the last he embodied all his wit and skepticism in his famous remark: "I am afraid, gentlemen, that I am taking an unconscionable long time a dying." That in epitome is the life of too many people today. They accomplish nothing but are simply burdening the ground with the long time they take "a dying." A certain John W. Marshall was credited with being the first to discover gold in California. He was afterward awarded a pension by the state for this. Through his hand passed several hundred thousand dollars but he found one day in his room having died a pauper's death. He had only taken an unconscionable long time a dying. Others came along who had to go through the same temptations and hardships as he, but they have built ships, schools, colleges, hospitals, churches, and with set faces have made the world a better place in which to live.

Today in our chasing of luxury and pleasure we need to know that life is real and earnest. We need more of the words of Ramsay MacDonald, as he spoke at Christ Anniversary, London, "Let us ask ourselves," he said, "has tolerance become indifference? Are we really taking things too easy? Certainly this is true: the life of the world needs the perpetual stimulation from the testimony of souls of earnest-minded men and women. Idealism can only be maintained by being translated into action. The older we grow the more precious do we feel the remaining years to be; more and more do we feel that to put our ideals into action is the only thing to hope for, strive and live for.

"Men cannot live by bread alone." Something has been going on in these more recent years which is softening the fiber of our living. The grace of God is not a good-for-nothing, semi-mental thing. Life is a quest, not a chariot. Our problem today is, how to produce an actor, backbone. We want men and women of stability and courage who will not lower the standard and who will make no bargain in which conviction is not an element. These words sound very much like those of our illustrious American poet:

Life is real! Life is earnest!
And the grave is not its goal;
Dust thou art to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul.

Let us then be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait.

"One of the enduring satisfactions of life is to be a real part of the world in which we live. All about us new thoughts are being thought, new paths are being opened," says Frederick Lynch, in a recent article. Let us resolve that we are going to be part of life, and not drifters or floaters. We must not fall foul to the very prevalent attitude that we are here to get as much pleasure as possible and that is all. There is no better place to turn for guidance than to the life of that one who set his face steadfastly to the work of life and by the testimony of two thousand years has proven that his life was a success. We need to study the elements in his life which drove him on and enabled him to accomplish the work he had to do.

The most outstanding quality of his life was that he was complete master of himself. He was master of himself mentally and physically. He could walk with the crowd and not be swayed by them. He could sleep in the midst of the stormy sea when all the disciples thought they were going to be drowned. When he faced Pilate, he stood for his principles even when he knew that Pilate had the power to put him to death or to save his life. In all respects he was complete master of himself.

This is a rare and priceless quality of life. It is worth pondering. The athlete who can train his muscles to obey his slightest wish and then falls when tempted to dishonesty is not complete master of himself. The man who can use words to paint mental pictures as the artist uses the canvas and yet does not have the moral stamina to stand the battle of a life is not master of himself. Lord Byron could write beautifully but he did not have the moral steadfastness needed to be the master of his character. It is no honor to a man to be a great singer and yet sometimes be found so intoxicated that he cannot appear on the program. The records of the daily papers will praise the outward talent, but in the record of the eternal such outward appearance will get only casual mention. In Bible history we have the example of Samson. He was a man, mighty in strength and prowess, but when it came to controlling his own lusts and temper, he was as weak as the weakest.

What is needed today is men who are complete masters of their own lives. Life today is more complex and strained than it ever has been. Outwardly we pride ourselves on the fact that we have thrown up certain safeguards through the medium of more regulation of questionable things, but there are still just as many who are making a mess of life. There is every indication of the need for greater masters of the soul.

The next element in the life of Christ which made his life a success was that he had a worthy goal. This goal and aim was as conceded early in life. It was when he was only about twelve years old, that he went to Jerusalem and while there was lost. The search for him finally came to an end in the temple where Christ where Christ was sitting in the midst of the doctors. The remark he made to his mother, when she expressed surprise that he had stayed behind, was, "Knew ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" He early developed that instinct and aim of the service of God through service to man.

This was a lowly aim as far as the world was concerned. But time has proven that Christ was right and that his goal, although despised by men, has been most worthy. It is justified by the way it has affected the life of the world. The rising estimate of a human soul, the freedom of woman from the position of abject slavery, the dispelling of superstition and ignorance, have all come in the wake of an enlightened knowledge of Christ. There can be no more definite nor worthy goal than that which Christ had as he worked and laboured for freedom and brotherhood of man. Our goals in life today should be worthy of such a great heritage as this. The mind of a high school graduate, or college man or woman, with the opportunities they have had should go higher than simply being a filling station servant, or champion prize fighter, or the king of "Swat" in the baseball field. Visionaries of lasting service for now and eternity should fill our minds as we look out to the work we have been called to do.

The goals of life which are going to make the world better are the spiritual goals of life. It is in the realm of the ideals where the great battles of the future are going to be fought. The past generations felt that the invention of engines of war would put a stop to war because every nation would be afraid to fight if they faced such instruments of destruction. But we are learning a lesson. The attainment of the great aim of world peace does not lie in the development of war machines. The attainment of that great goal lies in the development of men of spiritual power and capacity, for brotherhood. The same thing can be said of all our problems; problems of industry, child welfare, racial co-operation, prohibition are only going to be solved as the coming generations attain the goal of better understanding and ideals of service. They are essentially spiritual problems. It is only when we have men and women filled with the same spirit as Christ had, which reaches out to these higher ends of life, that our problems are going to be solved. We need to set ourselves, steadfastly in the line of this duty even if it should take us to Jerusalem or drag us through the streets, as it did William Lloyd Garrison and a host of others who have followed in the train of that Master of self.

The third quality in the life of that Master of self. The third quality in the life of that incomparable one was the capacity to appreciate human need. This is why people loved him so. Mothers came to him with their children with no other request than that he give them a blessing. That sick and the afflicted realized that in him they would find a sympathetic friend. A person who stumpled and fell in wrong and sin could find in Jesus the insight and understanding which gave new courage and strength. It was because of this homely virtue of being able to appreciate the needs of others that the crowds would follow simply to see him, and even a great Pharisee would talk with him a good share of the night. All found in him a sympathetic and understanding soul.

There are those all around us who are ever in need of love and sympathy. They are clothed in rage both physical and spiritual. They are sick at heart from the battle of life. A kindly word or a look of sympathy goes a long way to put heart into another, if they feel that we appreciate the need. To lose this aspect of life would plunge us into a second "dark ages." The reason why history records such a period is because this factor of appreciation of human need was lacking. There was the king living his life and the peasant living his; the tradesman and the scholar, each going his own way without giving heed to the other. The clergy and the laymen were each absorbed in their own work. It is true that there was a lack of preventive medicine and sanitary measures, that schools were not sufficient, but underneath it all lay the darkness caused by the lack of sympathy and understanding. It was this element more than anything else which made Christ great. Whatever we may be, or wherever our work may take us, we must set our faces steadily toward that work with our faces lit by the light of love and sympathy.

"O Master, let me walk with Thee, In lowly paths of service free, Tell me Thy secret; help me bear The strain of toil, the fret of care."

Canadians to Visit Mysterious Bali

Bali, that mysterious tropical island off the coast of Java where Eve would have been almost over-dressed and native boys — although they have never heard of him — look like Gandhi, will be more than a name but no less a mystery to a number of lucky Canadians by this time next year. For Bali, literally unknown until a motion picture director took his cameras and microphones there a year or so ago, has been added to the itinerary of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain's 1934 world cruise sailing from New York January fourth. Balfours, simple and unaffected, acted a charming love story for the screen. But they had to be taught what a kiss was. They live in a land of temples. Although education is not a strong point they can still count the few white people who have ever visited the island. They cannot count the number of dogs they own. They save the bodies of their dead until the last member of a family dies and cremate them all together. They worship bats and have 500,000 in one sacred cave. When priests send word that devils are abroad every man, woman, child and dog must stay within doors so nothing will impede the demons' quick departure. They love to dance, and on March 9 and 10, 1934 are especially performing traditional dances for the Empress of Britain's world cruise passengers. In addition to Bali, new world cruise calls will be made by the big, white liner at Semarang, Java, and Zamboanga in the Sulu Archipelago. The cruise will visit 33 ports in 24 countries covering 30,000 miles in 120 days. The pictures show a temple in Boeleang, a youthful "humorist" (top right) and a typical scene outside a native house where a cremation is about to be held.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful student in an art school, unconsciously sketches the head of a fellow student during class and when she is supposed to be drawing a Grecian urn. The professor, looking at her sketch, embarrasses Camilla by having Peter Anson, the boy whose head she sketched, criticize her work before the class. Afterwards Camilla goes to the park outside of city. A hand touches her shoulder.

(Now go on with the story.)

CHAPTER II.

"Miss Hoyt," a man's vibrant voice pleaded, "may I apologize? I'm sorry if I offended you in class today."

Camilla dabbed frantically at her tearful eyes with a square of bright linen, then raised her head reluctantly. She could not meet Peter's eyes. "Well, if you think I'm crying about that," she finally managed in a husky voice that stung with sarcasm, "you need not trouble to apologize. You presume a lot to think I even remembered it, don't you?"

"Oh—I'm sorry," he hesitated. "But if you are in trouble—that is—may I help you?"

To his amazement and relief, she laughed suddenly and looked up into his face as he bent over her anxiously. Her tear-stained eyes dazzled him, wide and shining like a child's, and the tumbled black hair was like a cloud around her laughing face where the sun had just appeared.

A man in livery opened the door and scrutinized him.

"Well, my trouble isn't sketching still-life objects," she said, "but don't worry about me. I'm all right. Just the blues, I guess."

His eyes twinkled with a spontaneous humor and he sat down on the bench beside her. "What kind of blues—Lincolnton, St. Louis or any particular brand? I might know the cure."

"Just the blackie-blues. Now there's an idea for a new blues song, if your ambitious to write a radio hit."

He shook his head, smiling. "I need all my inspiration for clay figures."

"Oh," her voice held awe. "You're a sculptor?"

"Well, that's what I want to be. It happens that I've studied with Professor Drake before, and am finishing next month. I only went into this sketch class for critical training."

"No wonder you laugh at us."

"Not at all. You have me wrong. Miss Hoyt. I wasn't laughing at you, really."

"Laughing with me, then?" she suggested, with a roguish tilt of her chin.

Peter chuckled with relief. "That's better," he declared. "Whose head were you sketching—the prof's?"

"No—yours."

"Mine?"

"Yes. I think it is a beautiful head and I couldn't resist sketching it. Besides, it was right in the way so I couldn't see the old study-object, anyway."

"Who doesn't know? Sure, I'll be seen 'you then."

He saluted blithely, turned into the highway and strode away. But his smile changed to an anxious frown as soon as he was out of Camilla's sight. Orchestra seats at the Madox club and supper at the Madox club, if he preferred famous food and hot music. He did, if he could afford a preference. But he couldn't. Such an evening's expenditure covered Peter's allowance and expenses for a week.

What to do, now? Hadn't he leaped into a devil of a mess, just such as he had been forcing himself to avoid for two months? Didn't he, Peter Anson, making his own way to a career, know better than to get mixed up with snooty girls like Camilla Hoyt, whom it cost a fellow a fortune to entertain? He did. Then, why hadn't he watched his step? Well—what were you going to do about it when you discovered that Camilla Hoyt was the most adorable and desirable creature in the world and you were mad to be near her, at the same time you feared her?

Professor Drake had precipitated the avalanche upon him, coming upon her in the park in tears had engulfed him. And here he was, scarcely daring to breathe and wondering how to escape from his new dilemma.

He shoved his hand into his trouser pocket, knowing that it would encounter only a few pieces of change. He poked his finger into his vest pocket, knowing that a lone five-spot was folded there. It represented his week's allowance for food. His thoughts leaped fearfully to a small deposit in his name at the bank, put there thriftily and with sacrifice, to meet emergencies. Peter smiled ruefully. Was this an emergency? It was, and it wasn't. If he could bring his conscience to admit the first thought and deny the second.

By eight o'clock, he had scouted his conscience, withdrawn half of his emergency fund—he had pledged himself to return at least half of it to the bank the following day, but he had to flash a roll, didn't he?—rented a tuxedo and a taxi, and was ringing the doorknob at the imposing Hoyt mansion across the park from the art school.

A man in livery opened the door and scrutinized Peter with practiced caution.

Danish Capital Is Lively

Copenhagen Has Shown No Sign Of World Depression

Refreshing sights are seen in Copenhagen, the only one of the world's notoriously sprightly cities which has not become a wilted leaf sprightly since the rainy days of '29.

The Prime Minister, Herr Stauning, sitting in a night club at midnight, perhaps the only prime minister in the world who doesn't lose the cares of state to depress him.

Copenhagen's gallant bicycle parade dashing along Osterbrogade at 5 p.m. A ravishingly beautiful cotton-headed blond, a dapper army captain in khaki, a mailman with a flashing red coat, two police officials in blue and gold grained, a half-dozen pink-checked schoolgirls, a portly woman with a Mexican hairless riding in a basket attached to the handlebars and yipping at a great Dane on the sidewalk. College students wearing glasses and carrying briefcases and young ladies highly powdered and rouged.

Tivoli, which in any other country would be just another amusement park, swarming with Copenhageners anxious to waste their money on fortune wheels, and a very attractive booth where one throws wooden balls at plates and soup tureens.

The traditionally lively Copenhagen newspapers, dividing their front pages between the world economic conference and a sensational murder case, the only flaw in which served to be that no one is sure whether a murder really took place.

The canal at Gammel Strand full of fishing boats and floating fish wells in which swim thousands of flounder and eels. The famous row of fisherwomen, cruelly skinning live eels and shouting at the noonday customers.

A nail driven into the counter of a hotel bar near Maidenhead Bridge, England, indicates the boundary of two counties, and customers on the Buckingham side can be served a half-hour later than those on the Berkshire side.

Mrs. Patience Round, who recently celebrated her 102nd birthday in Cradley Heath, England, was a chain smoker for 70 years.

No British-American

Air Service Planned

Concrete Scheme Is Not Under Consideration Yet In England

Conversations have been under way, but no concrete scheme for regular transatlantic air service between the United Kingdom and the North American continent by way of Newfoundland is under consideration at present, said Sir Philip Sassoon, Under-Secretary for Air in the British House of Commons. Sir Philip, a distinguished aeronautical enthusiast, told questioners there was no thought at the moment of a visit of an international commission to Newfoundland in regard to establishing of airports for such a service. This corrected an assumption by Geoffrey Le Manver, Liberal.

The British Government, however, had been conferring with the Canadian and Newfoundland representatives in the United Kingdom on certain general lines affecting the possible future organization of air services to and from Newfoundland, the secretary said guardedly.

He added, however, he was not in a position to give more detailed information, although to prevent misunderstanding he would emphasize no concrete scheme for transatlantic services was at present under discussion.

Speeding In Former Years

Twenty Miles An Hour Drove Fine 33 Years Ago

An issue of a Kingston newspaper of the year 1900 tells of a police court case in which the late B. W. Folger, one of Kingston's leading citizens and a horse owner, was fined ten dollars and costs for speeding on the streets with his fast driver. Evidence was given to show that Mr. Folger was driving at a three-minute clip, or at about twenty miles an hour. W. F. Nickle, nephew of Mr. Folger, and also a young lawyer, defended the accused, and gave notice that he would appeal the decision of the magistrate.

But what a change in conditions! Now automobiles dash through the city streets at rates decidedly in excess of twenty miles an hour and there are relatively few summonses for speeding. Thirty-three years ago a great commotion was caused when a citizen allowed his driving horse to make twenty miles an hour on the macadam roads, there being no paved roads then. Perhaps there would be a hubbub today if a racing horse was driven along a street at a twenty-five mile clip.

Ancient Structure

Interesting Discovery Made By Excavations In Mexico

Excavations in the heart of Mexico have disclosed an ancient structure like a Mayan temple.

Archaeologists were unwilling to pronounce it definitely of Mayan origin, but nevertheless said it might be such and intimated their present theories might be upset regarding the tribe which inhabited the Yucatan peninsula and Central America, and disappeared mysteriously about the 14th century.

Had Good Reason

Two men who had attended the village church were discussing the service.

"The vicar certainly preached a wonderfully strong sermon on vanity and extravagance," said one.

"Yes, but he said his own wife sitting right in front of him, wearing her new dress and new hat," put in the other.

"Oh," said the first, "that explains it! I wondered why he was so worked up!"

"Miracle Fountain" Still Flows

Lightning Brought Water To Georgia Prisoners 70 Years Ago

The "miracle fountain" of Andersonville, Georgia, is still flowing 70 years after lightning brought water to the wilderness in time to save a multitude of federal prisoners, dying in a hostile land. There is a monument there now, on the scene of American civil war strife. It's a national shrine.

More than 12,000 Unionists died at Andersonville, where there was a stockade in which 45,000, many of them wounded, were herded.

Sanitation was the prison's greatest problem—that and the prisoners who looted and slew their comrades. The scarce water supply at Andersonville was contaminated.

August and a relentless Georgia sun scorched prisoners and their Confederate guards alike. Some prayed, some sang. A black cloud drooped low and a bolt of lightning crashed over the stockade and tore away the earth almost in the centre of the prison yard. Water gushed from the hole—enough for all. Years after the war, somebody remembered the spring and a monument grew around it. The water still flows between the graves and keeps richly green the grass on hero-mounds.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALICE MICHOLLS

THE YEAR

I thrilled with joy in May,
When all the land was gay,
When the multitude
Of birds in field and wood
Lifted their songs in glees
From hedgerow and green tree!
When every road lay gleam
Lured me to journey still,
To climb that swelling crest,
Better to view east, west,
The sun-sweet world, so fair,
No sorrow could be there!

But springtime could not stay,
Nor the child-heart of May,
Though in life's summer-time
The deeper notes must chime,
They sound a heavier tune,
Ringing through golden June!

And mellow in the fall,
The songs of living call,
Richer for memory
Of joys that used to be.
Each season as it goes
To some sweet measure flows:
Winter, though grim and chill,
May move to music still!

Policeman Proved His Point

Really Important

Three young ladies of charm were making what just may have been illegally good time up one of the avenues the other June evening when a motorcycle cop came up from behind and drove along beside them. The driver of the car slowed down and looked innocent, but this proved to be unnecessary, for the officer was pleasant, almost chirpy. What he wondered, were three such pretty ladies doing out alone on such a night? They'd left the men at home, they said, and added that men weren't really important. The policeman disagreed, politely. The conversation went on for a while, the ladies remarked that this was fun, but what she'd really always wished for was a police escort around the city. "Come on, then," said the cop, and he shot out in front of their car, motioning them to follow. With a scream, he led them at sixty miles an hour through red lights and scattering traffic. Then he dropped back, remarked "You see, a man is important," and with that turned off down a side street.—The New Yorker.

Arranging Huge Air Derby

Race From England To Australia Starts In October, 1934

One of the events of the Victorian centenary celebrations is a great air race from England to Melbourne. Conditions have just been issued.

Cash prizes totalling 115,000 and a gold cup valued at £500, are offered for championship and handicap events, and each pilot who completes the course within 16 days will receive a gold medal.

The races will start on October 20, 1934, from several aerodromes in England, and will finish at Flemington.

Any number of machines may be entered by one competitor, and the same machine may be entered on both races, but only one amount of prize money will be payable in respect of each machine.

There is no limit to the number of members of crews, including passengers. Each machine must carry sufficient food and water to maintain life for three days, approved flotation gear for the pilot and every member of the crew, and not fewer than six smoke signals.

Little Helps For This Week

"He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much."—Luke 16:10.

The trivial round, the common task, would furnish all we ought to ask; Room to deny ourselves; a road To bring us daily nearer God.

Exactness in little duties is a wonderful source of cheerfulness. We are too fond of our own will. We want to be doing what we fancy mighty things; but the great point is to do small things when called to them in a right spirit.—R. Cecil.

It is not on great occasions only that we are required to be faithful to the will of God; occasions constantly occur, and we would be surprised to perceive how much our spiritual advancement depends on small obediences. The remaining duty is to do simple and hard sentiments in any duty is hardening the character to that temper which will work with honor under all conditions.—R. W. Emerson.

Caring For Cut Flowers

Many Ways Of Keeping Blooms Fresh For Days

Everyone knows the old tip of putting an aspirin tablet in the water as a pick-me-up. But do you realize that the flowers must be given fresh water after an hour or so, or the drug may have the opposite effect? Another remedy for flowers that have been out of water for some time is to split the stems, plunge them into a jar containing two or three inches of hot water, and keep them in the dark for an hour or two. If the stems will succumb unless you cut off the dead pieces of stem before putting the flowers in the vases. Tulips that bend over with the weight of their heads are usually treated by wrapping in stiff paper. But do you know that you can stiffen the drooping stems with starch? Put a small piece in the water and watch the result.

An Egyptian Pooh-Bah

Under the Mummy

Professor Selim Hassan, working on behalf of the Egyptian University, has discovered in the course of his excavations of the so-called Fourth Pyramid the grave of a veritable Pooh-Bah of the Fourth Dynasty. He found the tomb of a high official, Director of Finance, Keeper of the King's Food, Great Priest, Judge and Governor, District Director, and Frater Man under the King. Jars, vases and other utensils to the number of six were found in the tomb, many of them being of beautifully polished copper. Round the neck of the Pooh-Bah was a thin gold thread, which in his left forearm he wore a piece of turquoise and a bracelet of solid gold.

Natural Ice Box

Refrigeration problems of the Sedgewick camp of the civilian forest conservation camp, New Mexico, were recently solved by the discovery of a natural ice cave a few miles distant. Meat for the camp, in western Valenciana county, is kept fresh by storage in the underground icebox provided by nature.

Without artificial supplies of oxygen, a climber on the heights of Mount Everest must pause to breathe six to ten times between each forward step.

The modern girl learns to wear her heart upon her sleeve. In fact, she often learns to wear a sleeve.

Hail is reported to have fallen in the vicinity of Edmonton and Vegreville last week, doing considerable damage. Slight showers have fallen here Saturday night and Sunday. Some of the wheat is showing signs of dry and hot weather and will be harvested a little earlier than was expected.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Alexander motored down to Monitor and Gooseberry Lake, leaving Saturday afternoon and will return in a few days. They took camping facilities along and will take a brief rest before the harvest sets in. Mrs. Alexander has been teaching the Sydenham school for several years.

Mrs. Dave Walker and family returned from Regina on Friday night, where they have been for some weeks, having been called there owing to the sudden death of their son. We are all glad to have the Walkers back with us again and wish to extend our sympathy to them owing to their recent bereavement.

Jack Laird, manager of the local Monarch Meat Market, who was operated on at the local hospital, recently for appendicitis, is reported to be making a rather slow but sure recovery as it is reported he was on the operating table for over an hour. We will all be glad to see Jack back at his job as soon as he is able although that will be some time yet.

George Glass surprised and astonished his fellow employees, one morning last week, by walking into his office promptly at 9 a.m. His friends were not aware of the fact that George was in the habit of walking in his sleep, but showing up at this unexpected time in the morning aroused considerable comment. It was considered dangerous to excite him and there was some talk of calling the fire brigade to turn the water hose on him, in order to bring him out of the trance, when George swore and otherwise showed signs that he was awake, lit a cigarette and settled down to work. Of course his friends were only kidding him, because he was ahead of time once; nevertheless they may be better not do that stunt again.
